

A document about the sponsor finding situation and the result.

The above is the follow up email to a call I had with a potential sponsor and even though they seemed interested, there has been no communication since and we probably will need to roleplay as our own sponsor with our current situation.

Even though this is not a desirable outcome for experience talking with a stakeholder in a realistic environment it does allow us to analyse our progress in the eyes of the stakeholder for ourselves, and learn to critically evaluate a project in that position.